Yankton was the first territorial capital of the Dakotas. Because of that honor, and because of its location along the Missouri River, the city has a history that has many stories to tell. Many of the homes along Pine Street were built by men who had important positions in the riverboat industry. The tallest Queen Anne home in South Dakota - Cramer Kenyon Heritage Home - is located in Yankton.

Shopping downtown is a treat, where you can browse through clothing boutiques, upscale home décor stores, and stores ranging from those who sell exquisite jewelry pieces to kitchen gadgets. Children's clothing, sporting apparel, and a retro shop are fun to look around in.

You'll find fun at gifts, seasonal items, and a hardware store where they know customers by name. Western wear, wedding apparel, consignment clothing...there are a lot of places to visit.
